A SYSTEMS APPROACH to Assessment in Health Professions Education

October 17-22, 2021 (virtual)

Apply systems thinking in designing assessment programs that support the continuous quality improvement of all educational programs across the continuum at academic health science centers. Sharpen your skills in preparation for accreditation processes, while learning to organize and maximize the value of the voluminous data being collected at your institution.

The course incorporates multiple pedagogical methods, including interactive presentations, case discussions, small group journal clubs, institutional planning groups, selectives on assessment tools and approaches, and consultations with faculty experts.
